ABSTRACT

The goal of this study is to find out how Robert L. Frost's The Road Not Taken and Robert W. Service's Design respectively present libertarianism and determinism through the elements of poetry (diction, imagery, rhythm and meter, figurative language, and tone), the ethical implications of these life perspectives, and the poets' expectations through the poems. The analysis has revealed three important pieces of information. First, the two poems are proved to present five characteristics of libertarianism and determinism. Second, there are two ethical implications of libertarianism as presented in the first poem, which are moral responsibility and the importance of human effort. On the other hand, two ethical implications of determinism as presented in the second poem are moral lassitude and the futility of human effort. Third, three expectations are delivered in each poem. Briefly, Frost overall expects the readers to struggle hard and consider every possibility carefully since they must be responsible for their life both to God and other people. On the contrary, Service overall expects the readers to be grateful of and accept their life as the best history that might happen since their success and failure have been predetermined for their own sake.
ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

Finally, this thesis is completed! All of the glories and honors are dedicated to the Almighty God Jesus Christ, who has always guided and strengthened me throughout the painful interruptions and struggles in the process of doing this thesis. Without His grace and love, this thesis will never be accomplished. Moreover, He has also sent many people who have helped me complete this thesis.

First of all, I would like to thank my beloved family: my dad, my mom, and my elder sister Felicia Lesmana for always supporting me psychologically in those difficult moments. This writing process has made me aware that all of you are always there to accept me and encourage me to survive in the toughest conditions. I can’t express how grateful I am to have all of you as my family.

Second, I show my appreciation to my mentor M. A. Inez Saptenno, S. Pd., who has helped and guided me throughout the process of doing this thesis; to Ms. Ruth Sih Kinanti, Dra., M.Hum and Mr. Wishnoebroto, S. Pd., M. Hum who have kindly provided me with both mechanical and psychological supports through the briefings; to Ms. Monika Ari Wijayanti, S. Pd., who has given me valuable advices and suggestions in completing this thesis; to Ms. Wiwik Andreani, Dra. as the head of English Department and Ms. Tenneke Indra Dewi, Dra., M.Hum as the head of faculty of letters; and to other lecturers who have been very helpful to me.

Last but not least, I would like to thank my best friends who have taken part in supporting the writing of this thesis. The honor goes to Diana, Lidya, and Junita, who have been very kind in accompanying me to visit several libraries at Atmajaya University and the University of Indonesia; to Kristina or Afunk, who has reminded me to surrender all my worries and fears to God; to Desiyanti and my Senior High School friends Felisia Tanu and Liana, who have supported me mentally to be spiritual in doing the thesis, to my colleagues Ms Donna Isabella Corebima and Ms Merry Seythy, who have given me encouragement in facing all the difficulties in the writing process. All of these people have contributed a lot to the completion of this thesis, and I am very grateful to have them with me in the journey of accomplishing this thesis.

How grateful I am for Your guidance;
The plans are mine, the blessings are Yours.
Here I come to see You,
Here I come to praise You.
The only power and strength,
The only love and faith,
The only hope and future
I find in You.
